

Parent Quick Reference Sheet: Quarantines and Distance Learning

LEVEL 2: QUARANTINE

First Day

- If your child is healthy, have your child complete the next reading or literature lesson, or read the next chapter in the assigned novel with the materials you have at home (questions about academic content should be directed to the reading or English teacher; plan to turn in the written work upon return to school).
- If your child is healthy, have your child complete the next math lesson with the materials you have at home (questions about academic content should be directed to the math teacher; plan to turn in the written work upon return to school).
- Your child will be classified as “Distance Learning” in Infinite Campus. Each day, you or your child will need to log in to Infinite Campus to “check in” for attendance. If you need to designate your distance learner as too sick to participate in lessons for the day, please use our new online student absence resource on the homepage of our website. While the phone line will still be available, we encourage you to use this method as it will help us track absences more efficiently and effectively.
Note: Per school policy, if your child is too sick to complete assignments, report the absence as described above and email your child’s teacher(s) to determine alternate due dates for assignments.

Second and Subsequent Days

- If your child is healthy, log in to Infinite Campus to “check in”; this records your child’s attendance for the day (required daily when students are working remotely).
Note: Per school policy, if your child is too sick to complete assignments, report the absence as described above and email your child’s teacher(s) to determine alternate due dates for assignments.
- Elementary Students:
 - If your child is healthy, complete daily work in reading and math: Our general progression will be one reading/literature lesson per day and one math lesson per day. (Plan to turn in work upon return to school.)
 - If your child is healthy, complete other assigned work per teacher direction. Teachers will be communicating assignments via email.
- Secondary Students:
 - If your child is healthy, complete daily work in all core and academic elective classes as assigned by their teachers. (Plan to turn in work upon return to school.)
- Tests: Generally, tests will be administered upon your child’s return to school. Please communicate with the teacher if an alternate plan is in your child’s best interests.

Return to School

- Have your child arrive with all complete written assignments (unless alternate due dates have been arranged in advance with the teacher).
